"THE LAW OF THE LAWLESS"

Two days of work for two minutes of pleasure! That was the record set by the company engaged in filming Dorothy Dalton's latest picture, "The Law of the Lawless," which is on view at the Garden Theatre now.

The scene shows Charles de Roche, the young French star who shares honors with Theodore Kosloff and Tully Marshall in support of the star, baying from his horse to a spot and "bull dogging" or throwing the animal in its tracks.

A temperamental steer caused most of the trouble coupled with the fact that the action takes place in a 2000 acre village rather than in the usual corral. As a result, the steer elected to run through one of the tents or over the mountain side four out of five times in preference of charging straight at the camera and giving de Roche a chance to throw it and himself directly before the lens.

"Additional hospital facilities is another great need that I see, and I am glad to know that a movement looking toward the alleviation of this need is afoot."

The speaker asserted that he favors a city manager form of government, but declared that the form Port Arthur now has that of full time mayor is the next best.

That a corporation of $45,000,000, as this city represents, should not be influenced by politics, there is no comparison between this and any other form of government for cities.

"The plan of full time mayor is

TOO MANY CATS DIVORCE CAUSE

Hubby Stands 15 Cats Until Wife Asks Maid for Them

FORT WORTH, Oct. 12.—Two many cats were the cause of a divorce action being filed in the district clerk's office here. Ed Carr brought suit against his wife, alleging that she cared more for 15 tabbies than she did for him. Among other allegations, the plaintiff asserts that Mrs. Carr would sleep with her cats every night and leave her husband all by his lonesome in another bed.

The plaintiff claims that the 15 cats "boarders" were bad enough, but the climax came when his wife insisted that he be "house-maid" for the feline inmates of the one-time happy home. Carr also declares that it cost him $4 a week to provide food for his unbecomingly "guests," and that as he is a working man of small means the extra overhead cost of maintaining his establishment practically "broke" him.

Not only the cats, but his wife's extravagance, the plaintiff asserts, is a very good reason for a divorce being granted to him.

FIND OVERALL SUIT OF LONG LOST BABY

IRONWOOD, Mich., Oct. 12.—Finding of overall suit worn by Ralph Henry, 2-year-old baby missing since Sept. 23 from farm home of parents near Mellen, Wis., led to opening of an investigation here. District Attorney George Merrill says he has called every witness he can obtain to testify.

The overalls were found Sunday by two bird hunters, Casimir Wasielecki and Joe Lukaski. The overalls were partly hidden by leaves at a point a mile and a quarter south of Mellen, near the Berkshire mine. The garment is believed to have been placed there to mislead searchers.

An odor from the garment might indicate it had been dipped into a cream can. John Long, who led the party of searchers since the day the baby was first missing, Monday rounded up every witness who was on scene of search when it first started. Among witnesses who will be called, it is probably, is John Henry, father of the missing child.

CHURCH GOES TO SERVICE TO SAVE BOY

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 12.—Grady Whit, 2 years old, 540 Altan street, fell into an abandoned hole about seven feet deep and 10 inches in diameter while his parents were attending church services in a tent at Pittsburgh and Perry avenues. Services were broken up by the scream of the child. Officers Allen and Parker struggled with several hundred people who crowded about the edge of the hole, while they dug several feet down by the side of the hole and lowered a slender youth head first.

After a number of trials, the youth was able to grasp the child by the clothing and drag it forth, none the worse for its experience except for fright.

In their excitement, the people about the hole crowded so close it was feared they would suffocate the child by caving in the walls of the hole.

Solomon Approved Women in Business

It may be that a woman is not entirely a success at buying a man's neckties, but even so wise a man as Solomon conceded that women are good buyers.

"She considereth a field, and buyeth it." Note that word "considereth." "She bringeth her food from afar." She does not buy haphazard, at the nearest place, "she perceiveth that her merchandise is good." And then the wise man adds, "Her husband is known within the gates."

We do not know what advertising Mrs. Solomon No. 1 had access to, but we do know that prudent women today study the newspaper advertising in order to make themselves efficient in buying. The advertising columns of The News are the busy women's daily reference.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

CHAPTER 6
Forests Give Men Fire

How do you suppose people learned to use fire? It was probably by reason of accident or curiosity.

Did you know that hundreds of forest fires (every year) are started by lightning? It is through forest fires that early men are believed to have found what fire was like.

Before they knew about fire, what do you suppose they thought a forest fire was? They must have taken it for a terrible monster that belched smoke and flame. How frightened they must have been when they saw such a fire! They ran with all their might and didn't stop until they were so tired they dropped.

They were afraid of that terrible "monster," and who can blame them? Yet in every human being there is what we call "curiosity." Some men became curious about this monster which ate up whole forests. After running away from a fire, he went back to see what it was really like.

Near the forest edge, he paused. The fire was almost out—only here and there was a flicker of light. Suddenly the man found he had become warm. He enjoyed the new feeling.

Other men had doubtless followed him back to see what would happen to him. He shouted to them something that meant "good."

A few of them came up and poked him. They also felt the warmth and liked it. One man said:

"Let us go farther. Maybe we shall like it better still."

Picture in your mind these men as they went where the fire had been. One of them caught sight of a stick that was still burning a little.

He ran and picked it up by a part that was not ablaze. He found that the fire did not hurt him if he kept away from the flame. The two men carried the burning stick out of forest.

Some distance from the forest, we suppose that the man who held the blazing stick burned himself, dropped it quickly. To his surprise he saw that the fire spread to dry sticks or dry grass at the spot it had been dropped.

The way to keep a fire going was discovered.

With this new knowledge, they tried a flaming stick to the camp place and built a fire fire!

After that they had to keep adding fuel to the fire night and day, lest it should go out.

Here is an artist's idea of two men taking a blazing stick from a burning forest.
